Theories of European Integration

Ben Rosamond (2000), Theories of European Integration, Palgrave.
1. The Introduction

2. European Federalism

- Ben Rosamond, "Federalism, Functionalism and Transactionalism," Theories of European Integration, (the introduction + federalism part) pp. 20-31.
- Michael Burgess, "Federalism," in Diez and Wiener (2009), European Integration Theory chp. 2.

Functionalism: A Working Peace System

- Ben Rosamond, "Federalism, Functionalism and Transactionalism," Theories of European Integration, (the introduction + functionalism part) pp. 20-23, 31-42.
Transactionalism

Loose Unity
General debate: (1) which approach is better to avoid another war in Europe?
(2) Which one (or which elements in each one) "won" and can be found in the European integration process?

Neo-Functionalism (Haas, Lindberg & Scheingold)
- Philippe Schmitter, "Neo-Neo Functionalism," in Diez and Wiener (2014), chp.3.
Intergovernmentalism, Liberal Intergovernmentalism and New-Intergovernmentalism (Hoffmann, Milward and Moravcsik)
- Stanley Hoffmann, "Obstinate or Obsolete? The Fate of the Nation-State and the Case of Western Europe," Daedalus, 95 (3) (summer, 1966), pp. 862-915.

Liberal Intergovernmentalism

New-Intergovernmentalism

Constructivism
- Thomas Risse, chp. 8 "Social Constructivism and European Integration" in Diez and Wiener

Discursive Approaches
- Ole Weaver, chp.10 "Discursive Approaches," in Diez and Wiener

Post-Functionalism
Colleagues learning – students' presentation:
- Dirk Leuffen, Berthold Rittberger, and Frank Schimmelfennig (2012), Differentiated Integration: Explaining Variation in the European Union, Palgrave Macmillan,
  * chp. 5, "The Single Market".
  * chp. 6, "Economic and Monetary Union".
  * chp. 7 "Security and Defence".
  * chp. 8, "The Area of Freedom, Security and Justice".
General discussion: which theory explain better the different main policies of the EU? Are the theories opposing or complementing?

Differentiated Integration – Concept and Reality

- BREXIT: Theory and Brexit: can theoretical approaches help us understand Brexit? 2017, LSE Blogs Oliver Tim (3 pg.)

New-Institutionalism

- Mark Pollack, chp.7 "The New Institutionalisms and European Integration," in Diez and Wiener
- Jupille, Joseph, James A. Caporaso, and Jeffrey T. Checkel (2003), "Integrating Institutions Rationalism, Constructivism, and the Study of the European
Two/Three-Level Games

Principal – Agent Theory

- Tom Delreux and Johan Adriaensen (2017), "Twenty Years of Principal-Agent Research in EU Politics: How to Cope with Complexity?" European Political Science.

Governance, Europeanization, Governance

- Markus Jachtenfuchs and Beate Kohler-Koch, chp. 5 "Governance and Institutional Development" in Diez and Wiener
- John Peterson, chp. 6, "Policy Networks" in Diez and Wiener

Explaining the Differences between Europe and the other Continents

- Sebastian Kraphol (2013), "Integration Theory and the New Regionalism," in: External Influence on Regional Integration in the Developing World: Regional Cooperation and Defection, chp. 1,